

Multiple Market Interactions and General Equilibrium in Economics Experiments

Charles R. Plott

The lecture will focus on the equilibration process in complex market settings including the relationship between convergence and the Newton method of solving systems of equations. In addition to classical market environments the lecture will touch on both environments in which the equilibrium does not exist and in which non-convexities can create instability.